

Agreement is made this 3rd day of Oct 1978 by and between Andre Norton, the Author, whose address is 682 South Lakemont Ave. 32789, and Jessica Amanda Salmonson, the Editor, whose address is Box 5688, University Station, Seattle, WA 98105.

The Author hereby grants to the Editor the right to print the story entitled FALCON BLOOD in an anthology tentatively entitled AMAZONS to be published by DAW-SF Book Publishers, Inc.

It is understood that the use of this story by the Editor entails First North American Serial Rights, both in the English language and in translations anywhere in the world, and in hardcover, paperback, book club, and reprint editions of the anthology. It is also understood that the Editor may use this story only in the above anthology and reprintings of it, and that the Author retains all rights not specified here.

For the above rights granted to the Editor, the Author will receive the sum of $200, half to be forwarded upon acceptance of the story, half to be forwarded when the completed anthology ms. is turned over to the publisher. This fee represents an advance against a pro-rata share of 50% of all royalties and fees received by the Editor from the earnings of all editions and reprintings of the volume following publication. If the volume is not published within 24 months of the date of signing this agreement, all rights granted to the Editor will revert automatically to the Author, without repayment of advance.

The Editor agrees to provide the Author with at least one complimentary copy of the anthology's original edition, and to do her best to provide copies of editions of the book printed outside the United States.

The Editor also agrees to try to copyright the story in the Author's name.
